Waterlogged warriors

10:17 PM, Jul. 18, 2011 | 1 Comments

Members of the Naval Sea Cadet Corps got some in-the-water training Monday on Eagle Lake in the Fort Custer Recreational Area. The cadets learned lifesaving and water safety skills as part of their exercises at Fort Custer Training Center. / Kevin Hare/the Enquirer

Recommend   0   A A

FILED UNDER

News
Local News

The Navy League Cadet Corps and Naval Sea Cadet Corps Fort Custer Combined Training is an intensive nine-day program which provides cadets, ages 11-17, the basic introduction of barracks life, military standards, naval traditions and responsibility and accountability.

Members of the US Naval League Cadet Corps go through training out at Eagle Lake in the Fort Custer Recreational Area Monday. / Kevin Hare/The Enquirer

View Comments (1) | Share your thoughts »

TOP VIDEO PICKS